

SoHo Collection

1100, 1600, 1900 series (1%, 3%, 5% open)

The neighborhood south of New York City's Houston Street is a historic center of industry, from mid-century textile manufacturing to its modern incarnation as a shopping destination. It was here, in SoHo, that Joel Berman began MechoSystems in earnest, inventing new ways to manage daylight at the window wall, a story commemorated by the release of this collection.

The SoHo Collection consists of thin, finely woven yarns combined with distinctive color themes that create unique, elegant solutions for any project. The 2 x 2 basket weave has a soft hand and smooth texture, supplying a minimal accent. In addition, the see-through sunscreen allows for exterior views while providing optimal solar-shading, controlling glare and heat gain to ensure occupant comfort.

Features of the material:
